Link Wentworth encourages former and current residents and applicants to ask for a review of a decision we have made if they disagree with that decision. This is called 'lodging or making an appeal'.

What is an appeal?

An appeal is a request to have a decision reviewed. There are two levels of appeal.

The first level is when you ask for a review of a decision made by Link Wentworth about your housing or an application for housing. The decision will be reviewed by someone in Link Wentworth who did not make the original decision.

You can make a second level appeal if you do not agree with the outcome of the first level of appeal. Second level appeals are made to the Housing Appeals Committee \(HAC\). The HAC is an independent organisation that reviews decisions made by Link Wentworth and other community housing providers if the client is unhappy with that decision. It reviews the decision made in response to the first appeal to see if it was fair, reasonable and made within the policy of the housing provider.

Who can make an appeal?

Only the person affected by the decision can lodge an appeal to have the decision reviewed. But you can have someone help you to make the appeal.

What sort of decisions can I appeal against?

There are lots of decisions that you can make an appeal about. Below are some examples:

- If you have been told you are not eligible for rent assistance or social housing
- If you've been taken off the NSW Housing Register
- If your application to transfer to a different area hasn't been approved
- Former tenant charges
- If you've been told your rent is going to increase
- If your application to make changes to your home hasn't been approved

There are more examples in Link Wentworth's Appeals Policy. If you are not sure about whether you can appeal a decision, phone Link Wentworth on 9412 5111 and ask.

When the HAC gets your form, it will organise a date for a meeting with you. The meeting will be either by phone or in person.

At the meeting you can tell the HAC why you are unhappy with Link Wentworth's decision and you can also talk about your housing need. You can take someone with you to give you support if you would like to. A few weeks after the meeting with HAC you will get a letter from the HAC which will tell you what decision they have made. The HAC will also write to Link Wentworth.
